DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shavit et al.

Shavit et al. disclose, or inherently teach, all of the limitations of the claims including: supply chain management using a network; receiving data from a plurality of outlets; generating an electronic order (See for example Col. 6, lines 19-51); transmitting data from product outlets to distributors and suppliers (See for example Col. 6, lines 9-13); forecasting activity in the supply chain using the data (See for example Col. 7, line 19); security and limited access (see for example, Col. 9, lines 43-56), and verification of identity and password data (see for example, Col. 10, lines 1-15); but lacks the specific teaching of the products being "accommodation products and services by the accommodation outlets".

It would have been an obvious design choice at the time of the invention to one of ordinary skill in the art to have the products include accommodation products and services by the accommodation outlets, in order to provide a system that can cut costs at each level of the distribution chain and permit new and previously impossible or impractical transactions and business arrangements" (Shavit, Col. 2, lines 1-5), and thus be able to pass on the lower costs to end users.

Conclusion
